A DISCOURS OF THE EMPIRE,

AND OF

The Election of A King of the ROMANS, the greatest Business of Christendom now in Agitation.

AS ALSO

Of the Colledg of Electors, their particular Interests, and who is most likely to be the next EMPEROUR.

Τὸ μέλαν Μάγον.

J. Seneca, non Segnesco. H.

LONDON,
Printed by F. L. for Charles Webb, at the Rose-Tree in S. Pauls Church-yard 1658.

REPAIR

This was reprinted in Oct. 1662. without any Addition, but only this following Epistle

To his Highnes, the most heroicke & Excellent prince Rupert &c.

May it plese yor highnes.

The being A Diet, or great Imperiall parliament to be held shortly in Germany, I humbly conceived this weighty & Excellent treatise compild by so Known an Author, to be a seasonable present to your Highnes, whos illustrious family may bee Cal said to bee A constellation of the brightest starrs in that large firmament, wch I humbly hope will Excuse the boldnes of this Dedication, by your Highnes

4760.08

most obedient servant

Henry. Brome.

The Summ and substance of the ensuing Discours as it is divided to seven Sections.

THe proeme, shewing the Motives that induced the Author to undertake this task.

The first Section,

Treats of the first Rise of the Roman Empire, and of the hun-dry Rotations, or Retrogradations of Government that hapned in Rome, &c.

The second Section,

Treats of the Septemvirat, or the Electors of the Roman Empire, their primitive Constitution, and Power; with their precedence, and offices, &c.

The third Section,

Treats of the stile, and title of Emperour, or Cæsar, and of the King of the Romans, &c.

The fourth Section,

Treats of the Diet, or Imperial Parlement, and the Members thertherof, with the Division of Germany, and the strength of the Empire, &c.

The fift Section,

Consists of a parralel twixt the Empire pass'd, and the present, with the causes first and last of the declination therof, &c.

The sixt Section,

Treats of the enlargement of the Colledg of Electors, from seven, to an Octumvirat; And of the Conteſt that's now 'twixt the Count Palatin of the Rhin, and the Duke of Bavaria, touching the Vicarship of the Empire, &c.

The seventh Section,

Consists of som reflexes made upon the present conjuncture of things, and the political Condition of Germany, with a conjecture who is likely to be King of the Romans, and consequently the next Emperour, &c.

A Corollary.

Pauca in multa diffundere est opus Ingenii.

Multa in pauca digerere est opus Artis.

A

A DISCOURS OF THE EMPIRE; IN A LETTER Sent lately to a Noble Perſonage.

My Lord,

THe Election of a King of the Romans, and conſequently of a Weſtern Emperour, being now the Gran Buſineſ in agitation, and wherон the eyes not only of all Chriſtendom, but of other Princes (as well Turk as Tartar) are more earneſtly fix'd than at other times, becauſe of ſo long a vacancy, and a kind of demurr; As alſo for the oppoſition that France, with all her confederats, are like to make for ſecluding, and putting by the Houſe of Auſtria (eſpecially the young King of Hungary) wherin the German Empire hath continued above two hundred and olde yeers.

And wheras that after ſom looſe extemporall communications lardly upon this ſubject, your Lordſhipp deſir'd much to be inform'd of the preſent eſtate and intereſts of Germany, together with the power and primitive conſtitution of the Septemvirat, or the Colledg of Electors, with other reflexes upon that point; Being returned home, I fell a rummaging my old papers, and ſuch remarques that I gathered when I was employ'd in ſome parts of the Empire, and to comply with your Lordſhipps deſires (which ſhall shall alwaies be as binding to me as Decrees) I have digested into this short ensuing Discourl, consisting of seven Sections:

The first Section.

Treating of the first Rise of the Roman Empire, and the sundry Rotations, or Retrogradations of Governments that hapned in Rome, &c.

NOw for a cleerer illustration of things, and a more regular proceeding, it is not amiss to fetch in matters from their fundamental. (for the furtheſt way about is somtimes the neereſt way home specially in the reserches of Truth.) And to do this, we must go to Rome, a City that hath had had as many ſtrange traverſes of fortune, and turns of Goverment, as any other upon Earth, having bin eight ſeveral times raviſh'd and ranſack'd by ſundry warlike Nations. Firſt by Brennus the bold Britain, then by Alaric the Goth, afterwards by Genſericus the Vandale, then twice by Totila the Hun, after him by the Moores and Saracens, then by three Chriſtian Emperours, viz. by Henry the fourth, Otho the third, and Charles the fift when his Geheral the Duke of Bourbon breath'd his laſt in ſcaling her walls, (and ſhe was lately like to receive an ill-favour'd ſhock by the Duke of P*arma*) yet ſhe never fell ſans recourse as they ſay, or was ever layed ſo flat upon her back, but ſhe recovered herſelf, and rays'd up her creſt again, whence it may be inferr'd, that an extraordinary Providence, and Tutelar Genius doth attend that City; 'Tis tru that the tranſlating of the Imperial Court by Conſtantine, to Bizantium (which he chriſtned afterwards with his own name) was fatal to Rome, when the glory of the Tyber and Tyrrhene Sea pass'd over to the Hellespont, yet a Spi- ritual Head preserv'd her still in some lustre, In so much that when the Pope came to be her Master, she might have bin sayed to have bin reduc'd to her first Principles, and to have pass'd from one Shepheard to another;

viz. from Romulus, to Sylvester:
But ther were a world of vicissitudes and revolutions of goverments interven'd, and pass'd between; Her primitive, and original way of Ruling was by Kings, but, after a hundred and forty yeers continuance, she surfetted upon that, which surfett may be sayed to have proceeded from the Peeples wantonesse rather than from Tarquins lust; Then, she was govern'd awhile by Consulls, so call'd a Consulendo carrying a memento of their duty in their names; Then followed the De- cemvirs who were put down for the same vice that destroyed the Kings.
After that, the Supremacy was delated to two Tribunes; Then it revolv'd to Consulls, then to Tribunes again, but more

more than two, which lasted a good tract of time above seventy yeers, then came Consuls in again the third time, after that Dictators, untill Caius Iulius Cæsars time who was the first perpetuall Dictator; and a little after the first Emperour, though it cost him dear, for he might be sayed to have cimented the foundation of the Roman Empire with his own bloud being murther'd in the Senat by small contemptible tools, yet it remain'd in his progeny to six descents, viz. to Domitius Nero.

Thus after so many rotations or retrogradations of governments, and a kind of cushion dance of several kind of Rulers, the Imperial was Establish-ed at last, and the successive Emperours were us'd to be chosen by the Senat, and then saluted by the Army; But afterwards the Legionary Soldiers & Pretorian bands made Emperours sub hasta in the field, and Galba was the first who was chosen so, and that with the consent of the Senat; now, it was the most unpolitique act that ever the Roman Senat committed, which prov'd so fatal to so many of the following Emperours who held not their security as much as their lifes from the Soldiers, which took them away at pleasure; for after that the Election pass'd from the Senat to the Sword, ther were above thirty Emperours that were put to violent deaths, and som of them very tragical, fower murthered themselfs, many also of those that were adopted Cæsars, and design'd to succeed in the Empire were untimely made away, being rays'd to that pitch that they might perish the sooner, as an Author sayes.

But to go more punctually to work we will muster up here most of those Emperours that came to immature and violent deaths; Iulius Cæsar was assassinated in the Senat. Octavius the first Augustus (called so ab augendo Imperium, from enlarging the Territories of the Empire) was made away by his wife Livia; Tiberius by Macro; Caligula by Cassius Chereas; Claudius poyson'd by his wife Agrippina; Nero and

Otho

Otho slew themselfs; Galba and Vitellius were done away by the Soldiers; Domitian by Stephanus; Commodus by Letus, and Electus; Pertinax and Iulianus by the Prætorian bands; Caracalla by Macrinus command; Macrinus, Heliogabalus, Alexander, Maximinus, Maximus, and Balbinns by the Soldiers; Hostilianus by Gallus and Æmilianus, and they by the Legions; Valerianus died in Parthia; Florianus waas ccessary to his own death; Aurelianus murther'd by his own meniall servants; Gallienus, Quintillus, Tacitus and Probus by the militia, &c.

Now, that which heighned the Spirits of the Soldiery to such infolences, was the largesses, and encrease of salary, that the Prætorian bands us'd to receave from the new Emperour, which pernicious kind of bounty was begun first by Claudius Cesar, and is now practised by the Turk: for evry new Sultan useth to enhance the pay of the Spahies, and Ianizaries to so many aspers more for fear of mutinieng, which in time may be the bane of the Ottoman Empire, for such hath bin the presumption allready of the sayed Ianizaries of late yeers that they have murther'd two of their Emperours in lesse than five and twenty yeers.

Ottoman

But in the Roman Empire the military bands came to such an exorbitancy of power, that somtimes they did prostitute, and put the Empire to sale by publique outcry, as we read how Sulpitianus offerd twenty Sestertiums (which are neer upon eight pounds sterling apeece) to evry Soldier, but Iulianus rays'd the market higher, and out-bad him; But Constantine the great (the first Christian Emperour and a Britain born) found out the policy to regulat, & lessen the Prætorian bands, till at last he quite casheerd them, at least reduc'd them to such a nomber that they could do no hurt.

The removal of the Imperial Court to Constantinople, though it prov'd advantagious to the Bishop of Rome, who had the Citty transferr'd unto him by way of a pious donation from Constantine about his departure from Italy to the the Levant, as the Church Annals affirm, though some by way of drollery, and derogation to the Pope do say, that he hath the same right to Rome, as Venice hath to the dominion of the Adriatique Gulph, and that they are both inserted in one patent, though that patent cannot be found upon any record; I say though this removall was an advantage to the Bishop of Rome, yet it prov'd very prejudiciall to Italy in general, and to all the Western parts of the Empire, for many rough-hewn Northern Nations, that desir'd to come neerer the Sun, took the advantage hereby to rush in, not only to Italy, and haraſſe her so often, but like so many swarms of Locusts they cover'd other Countreys, (And some fear'd the like of the late Swedish Army, had they prosper'd in Poland) The Huuns took such firm footing that they gave the name to Hungary; The Longobards to Insubria, and the territories about Milan; The Goths and Vandales piercing the very heart of France over-overcame Spain, and denominated Andaluzia, Insomuch that the present King of Spain doth acknowledg himself to be de la sangre de los Godes, to descend from the Goths, wherby som wold inferr that he is a German not only by extraction from the House of Austria, but also from the Gothique race, who were a branch of the Teutons, or Germans, taking the word in the largest sense; but more properly may Germany challenge the French, and English to be her Children, the first comming from the Territories of Franconia, the other from the lower Circle of Saxony wherof they bear the names (Saissons) among the Welsh and Irish to this day.

But to proceed from the main subject, the Eastern part of the Roman Empire bore up many ages after Constantine with som lustre in the Levant, though the Northwest parts suffred many Eclipses, being so pittifully dilacerated, and torn by the fury of forein Nations; Now the chiefest cause therof may be ascrib'd to the remotenes motenes of the Emperours perſon at Conſtantinople, who by reaſon of ſo incommunicable a diſtance could not reach a timely hand to aſſiſt them with auxiliaries; But about the yeer eight hundred a new kind of auſpicious ſtar appeer'd in the Weſt, which was Charlemain, whom the Germans do claym to be their Compatriot, though they go a great way back and fetch him from Pharamond, or the firſt race of the Kings who invaded Gallia, and by way of conqueſt call'd it France.

Charlemain was the Gran-child of Charles Martell, who being Maire of the Palace, or chief Steward and Surintendent of the Kings Court gott his Son Pepin to be crown'd King of France over the head of Chilperic his liege. lord and maſter, Martel giving out that he did not follow the ambition of his heart, but the inſpirations of heaven in this act; So the Scotts ſtories tell us that the Family of the Stewards came to be Kings of Scotland by taking their Surnames from their office, for as Charles Martell was in France, so the first of them was Steward of the Kings Court in Scotland.

Charles

Pepin though a little man did great exploits, for he cross'd the Alpes, and recover'd Lombardy where a race of Goths had bin Kings above 200 yeers, And at his return to France conferr'd the Exarchatship, or Vicegerency of Italy upon the Bishop of Rome.

Charlemain his Son did higher achievments, for he clammer'd ore the Pyreneans and debell'd the Saracens in Spain, discomfited the Saxons, and confirm'd the conquest of Italy, so that he was solemnly saluted Emperour of the West at Rome by the general voice, and wonderfull acclamations of the people, and so confirm'd by the Popes benediction (Leo the 4th. on Christmas day.

Nicephorus in Constantinople storm'd extremely at first ther should be another Emperour besides himself, alledging that he was the sole Roman Emperour, and accordingly us'd to send his Exarquts, or Vice-

royes

royes to govern Italy, but not knowing how to remedy it, he complied at last with Charlemagne who then kept his Court in Germany, where he died, and was buried at Aquisgrave, leaving Ludovicus his son to succeed him, who partitioning the Empire afterwards twixt his three Sonns did wonderfully enervat and enfeeble it, as a great River cutt out into many armes, and slpces must needs grow weaker and shallower in her first bed.

Now, though Charlemain was an extraordinary heroique, and a Magnanimous gallant man as his actions tell us, yet his children for fower descents together did strangely degenerat, and prov'd but poor spirited men, His Son Lewis was call'd the Gentle for his soft nature, Charles the Bald was of a baser alloy than hee, Lewis the stuttring inferior to both, Charles the grosse the last Emperour and King of France died a most disastrous death; After him the Empire was soly devolv'd to the Germans; Charlemain and his Dependants enjoy'd it 118 yeers, then it came to the Houſe of Saxony who held it 117 yeers, The Houſe of Suevia 110, other families (wherof the Houſe of the Count Palatine of the Rhin, and of Naſſaw were ſomtimes) held the Empire 112 yeers, untill it came to the Houſe of Auſtria, who have held it longer than any one Family ever did.

Now, ther is a remarquable Tradition how the Houſe of Auſtria came to that comble of greatnes, which they report thus,

Rodulph Earl of Habſpurg returning homeward fromhunting one day overtook a Prieſt that had the Eucharift under his habit, comming from viſiting a ſick body, The Earl finding he was tyr'd alighted, and help'd the Prieſt a horsback, and holding the bridle in his hand wayted upon him as a lacquay till he came to the Church, and replac'd the Hoſt upon the Altar, The Prieſt ſang an extraordinary Maſſe (where the Earl devoutly attended all the while) and pronouncing the Benediction at the end

end, he croſs'd the Earl, ſaying that for ſo ſignal, and a ſweet Act of piety, His Houſe ſhold be one of the greateſt, and moſt glorious Families that ever was upon Earth, which prov'd tru, for a while after not only the German Empire, but the Eaſt, and Weſt Indies, with all the Dominions of Spain, wherof ſome are the tother ſide of the world, came to that Family.

And now, my Lord, I will proceed to the Septemvirat, or Colledg of Electors (wherof I promis'd an account in the beginning) whoſe Creture the Emperour may be ſayed to be, for tis their breath that makes him.

The second Section,

Touching the Septemvirat, or Electors of the Roman Emperour, their primitive Constitution, and power with their precedence, and offices, &c.

FOr two hundred yeers after Charlemain, who was the Restaurator of the Occidental parts of the Roman Monarchy (which had bin so pittifully shatter'd by the irruption of sundry barbarous people, as was sayed before) and therfore meritoriously stil'd, the first Emperour of the West, I say ſay for a long time ther was no certain or regular way of Election, and the cuſtoms was that the Emperour regnant us'd to nominate, & recommend his Son, or neereſt Kinſman to the German Princes, but in the yeer about 1000 after the Incarnation, Rome began to rayſe up her creſt, and bruſſle, by redemanding and challenging the Election of the Emperour, alledging, 'twas a prerogative of Hers de jure antiquo; The raking up of the aſhes of this old Right, was like to kindle a great fyre on both ſide of the Hills, for the Italian Princes ſtuck to Her in the claym; But Otho the third a prudent Prince found a way to prevent it, by procuring a Coſen of his to be created Pope by the name of Gregory the fift, who being a German born, was ſo favorable and indulgent of his own Countrey, that he confirm'd the chooſing of the VVeſtern Emperour to the German Nation, but the Romans, with ſome Italian Princes ſtomaching heer-at, they depos'd Gregory, and choſe the Biſhop of Placentia Pope in his place, by the title of John the ninth: Otho took this in so great indignation, that he suddenly rays'd an Imperial Army, clammer'd or'e the Alpes, and made his way by the point of the Sword towards Rome, which open'd her Gates unto him without much difficulty, so he seaz'd upon the person of the new Pope, disoculated that counterfait light of the Church by plucking out his eyes, and replac'd Gregory the fift his Cousin in Saint Peters chair with triumph.

Otho being victoriously return'd to Germany, convoqu'd the chiefest Princes, and propos'd unto them the multiplicity of inconveniences, encumbrance, and causes of confusion, that the incertain, and unestablish'd way of chooſing an Emperour, and his immediat Successor, was subject unto, therfore he desir'd them to consider of a more regular way of Election; so after many mature deliberations, and bandings of opinions they fell upon settling a Septemvirat, viz. seven Princes, in whom a plenary power power ſhold be inveſted, to elect an Emperour, and his next Succeſſor; Herupon the Colledg of Electors was founded, and conſtituted, but they muſt be all within the German pale; Addreſſes were made to the Pope about this buſineſs, who not only approv'd herof, but was ready to confirm the Act, provided that three of the ſayed Electors were Eccleſiaſtiques; So the Weſtern Empire was made purely Elective, giving encouragements therby for Princes of Vertue and merit to aſpire.

Herupon the Archbiſhop of Mentz, the Archbiſhop of Collen, and the Archbiſhop of Tryers were choſen for the three Spiritual, and for the ſecular the Palſgrave of the Rhin, the Duke of Saxony, the Marquis of Brandenburg, and in caſe their ſuffrages were equal, the Duke of Bohemia (made about 80 yeers after King) was choſen to have a ſeſsion among them, and whom he nam'd of thoſe two that they had elected, ſhold be Emperour, ſo that the Bohemian might be call'd rather an Em- pire than an Elector in these transactions.

This great Act was solemnly voted, and enroll'd in the Imperial Chamber, and som hundred of yeers after 'twas ratified and fortified by the famous Aurea Bulla, the Golden Bull, who regulated matters more punctually touching the Offices, the Precedencies, and other particulars reflecting upon the sayed Electors. The Archbishop of Mentz was made High-Chancellor of Germany, He of Colen High-Chancellor of Italy, and he of Tryers High-Chancellor of France; The Duke of Saxony was made sacri imperii Archi-Marascallus, Lord high Marshall of the sacred Empire; The Count Palatin of the Rhin sacri imperii Archidapifer, Lord high Sewer of the sacred Empire; The Marquis of Brandenburg was made sacri imperii Archicamerarius, Lord high Chamberlain of the sacred Empire; The Duke (now King of Bohemia) was made sacri imperii Archipincerna, Lord chief

But-

Buttler. of the sacred Empire, all which offices are contracted in this tetrastique.

Moguntinensis, Trierensis, Colonienſis, Quilibet Imperii ſit Cancellarius bo(rum;
Et Palatinus Dapifer, Dux portitor (ensis,
Marchio Præpoſitus cameræ, Pincerna (Bohemus.

Thus in Engliſh,

Mentz, Colen, Tryers, let theſe Three
Each of Them an Arch-Chancellor bee,
Duke, bear the Sword; Count, the firſt Diſh take up;
Marquis look to the Chamber, Boheme the Cup.

So the ſecular Electors are compos'd of a King, a Duke, a Marquis, and a Count.

Upon an occasion of a new choise, these with the Eccleſiaſtiques were to be ſummon'd by the Archbiſhop of Mentz, to aſſemble within three months time, and to be garded by the Countrey as they paſſed along, but their retinue was not to exceed two hundred horſe, wherof ther ſhold be but fifty armed.

Being conven'd, the Eccleſiaſtical Electors were to put their hands only on their breaſts, the Secular Princes ſolemnly upon the Book, to chooſe a fit Imperial head for Chriſtendome, and they were to do this within the compaſs of thirty daies, and not to go out of Frankford, or the place where they mett in the interim, & Jury-like to have no other nutriment but bread and water after the expiration of the ſayed thirty dayes.

The choice being made by the Aſſembly of Electors, the new Emperour, according to the tenure of the golden Bull the gran Charter of the Empire (ſo call'd becauſe 'twas confirm'd by the the Pope) is saluted by the Title of King of the Romans, and not Emperour till he be crown'd with three Crowns, viz. with the golden Crown representing Rome, with a sylver Crown representing Germany, and with an Iron Crown representing Lombardy, which ceremony useth to be perform'd at Aquisgrave for all the three places, But he is not to be call'd Augustus till confirm'd by the Pope.

At the first day of the Emperours Inauguration, the foresayed Electors were to give their personal attendance in the Emperours Court, but now they are dispens'd withall to do it by proxy.

Before the Palace Gate ther us'd to stand a heap of Oats to the breast of a Horse, then comes the Duke of Saxony mounted, having in his hand a sylver wand, and a sylver measure stood by, which was to weigh two hundred Marks, he fills the measure, sticking his wand afterwards in the remainder, and so goes to attend the Emperour; The three Arch-bishopps say ſay Grace; The Marquis of Brandenburg comes alſo on horſ-back with a ſylver baſon of water, of the value of twelve Marks, and a clean towell which, being alighted, he holds to the Emperour; Then comes the Count Palatin of the Rhin a horſ-back alſo, and being alighted he carries fower diſhes of meat, ev'ry diſh of the value of three Marks; Then the King of Bohemia comes with a napkin on his arm, with a cover'd cupp of twelve Marks which he preſents.

Touching the precedence of the Electors among themſelfs one may judg of it by the maner of their ſeſſion with the Emperour, when he ſitts in Majeſty, which is thus.

The Arch-biſhop of Tryers high Chancellor of France ſitts over againſt the Emperour; The Arch-biſhop of Moguntia or Mentz, as high Chancelor of Germany ſitts on the right hand of the Emperour; The Arch-biſhop of Collen on the left hand; The King of Bohemia hath his ſeat on the right hand of the Arch-biſhop of Mentz, and next him him the Count Palatin of the Rhin; The Duke of Saxony fitts on the left hand of the Arch-bishop of Collen, and by him the Marquis of Brandenburgh.

Moreover when they us'd to go in procession with the Emperour 'twas ordain'd in the Golden Bull that the Arch-bishop of Tryers shold go before his Imperial Majesty, and neer him on both sides one of the Ecclesiastical Electors; The King of Bohemia was to go alone after the Arch-bishops, and after him the Elector of Saxony with the naked Sword of the Empire in his hand, having on his right hand the Count Palatin of the Rhin, carrieng the golden apple which denotes the world to be under the Roman Empire; And on the left hand of the Duke of Saxony, the Marquess of Brandenburgh was to march with a Scepter in his hand, then followed the Emperour himself.

By what hath bin spoken the discern-cern Reader may judg who had the priority of place, the Count Palatin of the Rhin or the Duke of Saxony, a Conteſt that hath gravell'd many.

THE

The third Section,

Touching the ſtile & title of Emperour or Cæſar, and of the King of the Romans, &c.

COncerning the Character, and title of Emperour, it is of a younger date than that of King, and among the Romans it was in the beginning given to him who was Commander in chief of the Militia, nor was it neer of ſuch a tranſcendency then as now it is, He was at firſt but Thou'd, he was but Thou'd when he was ſpo-ſpoken unto, but afterwards in regard he had the prerogative to conferr honors, and offices, to grant pardons, and patents of grace, with other obliging motives, the Courtiers, eſpecially the Churchmen began to magnifie, or rather deifie him with ſublime attributs, as we read in Symmachus in his Epiſtles to Theodoſius, and Valentinian, wherin his ſtile unto them is Veſtra æternitas, veſtrum numen, veſtra perennitas, veſtra clementia, &c. then he began to be call'd Divus Imperator; but touching the title of Majeſtas, which was given ab augendo Imperium (as was touch'd before,) or as ſome wold have it a majori ſtatu, it is an attribut of no great antiquity, for it is not found among the old Authors, and is rarer ot till Henry the ſeconds time to France who is not us'd to be backward in aſſuming, and applyengtitle of greatnes to her ſelf.

But concerning the dignity of Emperour, as heretofore, ſo is he ſtill accounted the prime potentat and Prince paramount among Chriſtians, and not only only among them, but the Turk, next himself accounts the German Emperour the greatest Monark upon Earth, and esteems him accordingly, which appeer'd in the person of David Vngnadius, who being not an age since Ambassador in Constantinople for the Christian Emperour, and coming for audience to the Duana in the Seraglio, the Persian Ambassador had come before, and got the chair, but Vngnadius offering to go away ther was an upper chair put for him.

Another time upon the celebration of Mahomet the Thirds Circumcision which lasted forty daies & nights, ther being then in Constantinople the Legats of the greatest Monarks upon Earth, yet Hee who was Ambassador at that time for the Emperour Rodulphus the second had alwayes the first place.

Some Civilians exalt the Emperour with divers transcendent titles, wherof one is, Dominus totius terræ, the lord of the whole Earth; That Cæsar is Proximus Deo; Cæsar is next to God Almighty; But though though the Emperour be accounted the sole supereminent Prince in Christendom yet ther have bin other Kings who assum'd that title besides him; Som of the Kings of Spain have bin call'd Imperatores Hesperiæ; King Edgar who was row'd upon the river of Dee by fower Kings, wherof the Scot was one, had this title, which appears upon good record by this bouncing Character. Ego Edgarus Altitonantis Dei largifluâ clementiâ Anglorum Basileus omniumq; Regum Insularúmq;, Oceaniq; Britanniam circumjacentis, Cunctarúmq; Nationum quæ infra eam includuntur Imperator, et Dominus, He was call'd also Albionis Imperator.

I Edgar by the bountifull clemency of the highthundring God, King of the Englisch, Emperour, and Lord of all the Kings, Islands, and seas circumjacent to Britain, and of all the Nations included therin, he was stil'd in another place Emperour of Albion.

Moreover the Realms of England was declared an Empire by Act of Parlement octavo Henrici octavi and in divers vers other Acts the Crown of England is call'd the Imperiall Crown, and the City of London the Imperiall Chamber.

Now touching the reſpects that other Chriſtian Kings owe the Emperour; they acknowledge no other but that of precedence only, though Henry the ſecond of England in his letter (which ſtands upon record) to Frederique Barbaroſſa, and Richard the firſt in his to Henry the 6. Emperour, ſeem to acknowledg a kind of ſubordination by way of Complement; but Edward the third of England wold not kiſſe the Emperour Lewis of Bavaria's feet at their Enterview in Colen, and the reaſon he alledg'd, was, becauſe he was Rex inunctus habens vitam & membrum in poteſtate ſua, &c. becauſe he was an anointed King having life and limb in his power, &c. which Edward, as the German Annals atteſt, Ab Electoribus fuit vocatus, et nominatus Vicarius Imperii, he was call'd, and nominated Vicar of the Empire, and as ſome have it, was offer'd to be Emperour, in regard of his acquests, and glorious Exploits in France, whence he brought the three flower de luces upon his Sword, after the French had sent him that geering answer that la Couronne de France n'est pas liee a la quenoville, that the Crown of France was not tied to a distaff.

Add hereunto that the Emperour cannot be call'd so pure, and independent a Monark as some other Kings, for besides that he is but Tenant for life and govern'd by Diets which are Imperial Parlements, the Electors may be sayed to be his Associats, and to have a share in the goverment; Nay, the Emperour by the ancient customs of the Empire may be brought to answer in Causis pro quibus impetitus fuerit, sayeth the Bull, before the Count Palatin of the Rhin, but he can passe no Iudgement unlesse the Emperour himselt be present in Imperiali curia.

Ther want no examples that some Emperours have bin depos'd for their mal-administration, an instance shall be made in Wenceslaus in the yeer 1400. who was formally degraded by the Archbishop of Mentz upon a publique theater in the plaines of Brubach neer the river of Rhin by a judicial sentence, which I thought worthy the inserting here.

be

WEe Iohn Archbishop of Moguntia, Prince Elector and Archchancellor of the German Nation, in the name of other Princes Electors, Dukes, Landgraves, Counts, and other Lords, Barons, and Potentats of the Empire, in regard of divers dommageable interests, and for the special importance of all the Empire, we do depose, and deprive by common consent, and Mature deliberation, Wincestaus as negligent, unprofitable, and unworthy of the Roman Empire; We degrade him of all the dignities and of all the honors which were due to him from the Empire, and we publish him in the presence of all the Princes, Barons, and Potentats of the Empire for a prophane person, and unworthy of such an honor, and dignity; Enjoyning Every one of what quality or condition soever he bee, not to yeeld him obedience as Emperour, prohibiting every one to pay him any kind of tribut, fief, or forfeiture, either by Right or by covenant, or any office appertaining to the Empire, Nay, we will that those perquisits be reserv'd untill God doth give us the grace to elect an Emperour, that may be for the benefit of the whole Empire, and the Christian Common-weale. And it is well known how often he hath bin admonish'd by the Princes Electors both in publique and privat, and particularly by ev'ry one of our Order that he wold leave his unworthy deportments, and carry himself as his Dignity requir'd.

Concerning the King of the Romans, it is but a modern title, peculiar to him who is declar'd Heir apparent, or the design'd Successor of the Empire; But at first, he who was so chosen was called Cæsar, and it was the Emperour Adrian who first cal'd Ælius Verus by that title, insomuch that the family of Julius Cæsar being extinct in the person of Domitius Nero who was the sixt in descent (as afore was told) the name Cæsar ceas'd to be us'd as the name of a family or blood, but it was us'd as a name meer honorary, and precedent to the Em-

Empire; Afterwards the design'd Successor to the Empire was call'd Despote, after that he was call'd King of Italy, then King of Germany, and lastly King of the Romans, Romischer Konig in high Dutch, and the Emperour himself was only call'd Cæsar Keyser in Dutch, wch appellation continueth to this day; And it was Charles the 5 who introduc'd the title of King of the Romans, who since is acknowleg'd the immediat, and unquestionable apparent Heir and to succeed in the Empire, whether it be by Resignation, by deprivation, or death, being in proximo fastigio collocatus to the Emperour; Nay som Civilians hold that the King of the Romans may make Edicts without the regnant Emperour, being bound only as they say, Majestatem Imperialem comiter observare, making him hereby to owe a duty of reverence, but not of superiority to the Keyser or Emperour.

The 4 Section.

Touching the Diet or Imperial Parlement, and the members therof, with the Division of Germany, and the strength of the Emperour.

THe German Empire is divided to ten Circles, viz. Austria the high, and low, Franconia, Bavaria, Saxonia, Westphalia, the lower Circle of Saxony, Burgundy, the two Palatinatts; The goverment wherof is princi- principally in the Emperour, contracted-ly in the Electors, and diffusively in the Diet or Imperiall Parlement, and other Courts, wherof the Chamber of Spire is the Supreme, whence ther is no appeal.

In the Diets, after the Emperour, the Princes Electors are the prime state, among whom the Prelats have still the priority; The second state is compos'd of four Arch-bishops, viz. he of Magdenburg (who is primat of all Germany) He of Salzburg, he of Besanson, and the Arch-bishop of Breme, which Archbishoprick the Kings of Denmark have had a long time; Then ther are one and thirty Bishops, and eleven Abbats, wherof he of Fulda is the chief, having above fourscore thousand rich dollers in annuall revenue; Then come the secular Princes of the Empire, wherof the Arch-dukes of Austria are first, and they are divided into two branches, viz. of Germany and Burgundy.

The third Estate is compos'd of Imperial towns which are about sixty five in nomber, som wherof hold soly from the Emperour (which are accounted the most noble,) and some are Relevant from other Princes. Ther is another sort of Towns call'd the Hansiatique Towns, twixt whom ther is a strong confederacy, and fraternal league in merchantile affairs: They are divided into fower classes, or Metropolitan Cities, to wit Lubeck, Colen, Brunswick, and Danzick, who have a solemn yeerly convention at Lubeck where they keep their Records. The Hans or Hansiatique Association is of long antiquity; touching the word, some wold fetch it from hand, because they of the Society plight their faith when they enter into the fraternity; others derive it from the word Hansa, which is Counsell or advice in the Gothique toung; Others wold have it from Hander see which signifieth a place neer the Sea, and this passeth for the most current Etymologie, in regard that all their Townes are so situated, or upon som Navigable river leading to the Sea. The Extent of the old Hans was from the Nerve in Liefland, as far as the banks of the Rhin, comprehending about 62 townes of traffique, whereof the fower great Towns afore nam'd were the ſeveral precincts; The Kings of Poland, and Sweden have ſued to be their Protector, but they refus'd them, becauſe they were not Princes of the Empire; They put off the King of Denmarque alſo with a complement, nor wold they admit of the King of Spain when he was moſt powerfull in the Netherlands, though afterwards they deſir'd his help when 'twas too late; They refus'd alſo the Duke of Anjou, notwithſtanding that the world thought at that time he ſhold have married Queen Elizabeth of England, who appeer'd for him in this buſines, whereby 'twas probable, they might have recover'd their old priviledges in England; So that I do not find that they had any other Protector (unles of late yeers) but the great maſter of Pruſsia, and their want of a Protector did do them ſome prejudice in that fa-

the

famous difference they had with Queen Elizabeth; The old Hans had Extraordinary immunities conceded unto them by our Henry the third, becauſe they aſſiſted him in his warrs with ſo many Ships, and, as they pretended, the King was not only to pay them for the ſervice of the ſayed Ships, but for the veſſels themſelfs in caſe they miſcarried; Now, it fortun'd, that upon their return to Germany from ſerving Henry the third; a great part of their Fleet was caſt away by diſtreſſe of weather, for which according to covenant they demanded reparation; Our King in lieu of money gave them ſome immunities, and among other acts of grace, they were to pay but one per cent cuſtom, which continued till Queen Maries time, and by the advice of King Philip her husband ſhe Enhanc'd the one to twenty per cent; The Hans not only complain'd, but clammor'd allowd for breach of their ancient privileges confirm'd unto them by long preſcription from thirteen ſucceſſive Kings of England, which which they pretended to have pourchas'd with their money; King Philip undertook to accommodat the busines, but Queen Mary dieng, a little after (out of a conceit of the lesse of Calais, which she sayed upon her death-bed should be found Engraven in her heart if she were open'd) and he retiring hence, there could be nothing done; Complaints being made afterwards to Queen Elizabeth, she answered, that, as she wold not innovat any thing, so she would protect them still in the immunities, and condition she found them. Hereupon their navigation, and traffic was suspended awhile, which prov'd very advantagious to the English, for they tryed what they could do themselfs herein, and after som adventures they thrive so well that they took the whole trade into their own hands, and so divided themselfs to Staplers, and Merchant adventurers, the one residing constant in one place, the other stirring, and adventuring to divers towns abroad with cloth, and other manufactures; This so netled the Hans, that they they devis'd all the wayes they could to draw upon them the ill opinion of other Nations; Moreover the Hans towns being a body incorporated in the German Empire, complain'd to the Emperour, who ſent over Ambaſſadors to mediat the buſines, but they retur-n'd ſtill re infecta; Herupon the Queen caus'd a proclamation to be publiſh'd, that the Merchants of the Hans ſhold be intreated, and us'd as all other ſtrangers within her dominions in point of Comerce, without any mark of diſtinction.

This nettled them the more, therupon they bent their forces more eagerly, and in an Imperial Diet at Ratisbon they procur'd that the Engliſh Merchants who had aſſociated themſelfs in corporations both in Embden, and other places, ſhold be adjudg'd Monopoliſts; whereupon ther was a Comitial Edict procur'd againſt them that they ſhold be exterminated, and baniſh'd out of all parts of the Empire; which was done by the activity of Suderman a great Civilian;

Ther

Ther was there at that time for Queen Elizabeth Mr. Gilpin, as nimble a man as Suderman, and he had the Chancellor of Embden to countenance and second him, but they could not stop the Edict wherby the society of English Merchants adventurers were pronounc'd a Monopoly; yet Gilpin played his cards so well that he wrought under hand that the sayed Imperial Ban shold not be publish'd till after the dissolution of the Diet; and that in the interim his Imperial Majesty shold send an Ambassador to England to advertise the Queen of such proceedings against her Merchants; But this made so little impression on the Queen, that the sayed Ban grew to be rather ridiculous than formidable; for the town of Embden harbour'd our Merchants notwithstanding, and afterwards the town of Stode; but they, being not so able to protect them against the Imperial Ban removed, and settled themselfs in Hamburgh; After this the Queen commanded another proclamation to be publish'd, that the

Han-

Hanſiatique Merchants ſhold be allowd to trade into England upon the ſame conditions and payments as their own Subjects did, provided that the Engliſh Merchants might have the ſame privileges, to reſide, and trade peaceably in Stode or Hamburgh, or any where elſe within the precincts of the Hans; This incens'd them more, thereupon endeavours were made to cut off Stode, and Hamburgh from being Members of the Hans, or of the Empire, but they ſuſpended this deſſein till they ſaw what ſucceſſe the great Spaniſh Armada ſhold have which was then preparing in the year 88, for they had not long before made their addreſſe to the King of Spain which had done them ſom good offices; Wherfore to this day King Philip and his Councell were tax'd of a great overſight, that ther was no uſe made of the Hans towns in that great Expedition againſt England.

Queen Elizabeth finding that they of the Hans were not contented with that

Equa-

Equality ſhe had offer'd to make twixt them, and her own Subjects, put out a Proclamation that they ſhold tranſport neither corn, victuals, arms, timber, maſts, cables, metals, and any other materials, or men to Spain, or Portugal; And after, the Queen growing more redoubted, and famous by the overthrow of the Fleet in 88, The Hans began to deſpair of doing any good; Add herunto that another diſaſter befell them, which was the taking of 60 Sayles of their Shipps about the mouth of the River of Lisbon by the Queens Shipps, that went laden with ropas de contrabando, or goods prohibited bv her former Proclamatio ns into the Dom inions of Spain; And as theſe Shipps were ready to be diſcharged, ſhe had intelligence of an extraordinary Aſſembly at Lubeck, which had purpoſely mett to conſult of means to be reveng'd of her, therupon ſhe made abſolute prize of the ſayed 60 Shipps, only two were freed to bring home tydings what became of the reſt; Her-

upon

upon the Pole ſent a ranting Ambaſſador in the behalf of the Hans, who ſpake in a high tone, but the Queen herſelf did ſuddenly anſwer him in a higher.

Theſe premiſſes being well conſidered, it prov'd an advantagious thing for England that this claſh fell out betwixt Her and the Hans, for ever ſince the Engliſh Merchants have beaten a peaceſull and an un-interrupted trade into High and Low Germany, with their Manufactures of Wool, the Golden fleece of England, and found alſo a way through the White Sea to Archangell, and Moſco, which may be ſayed to have been the chief ground of that encreaſe of Shipping, Mariners, and Merchandiſing which ſhe is come unto.

Now, ther is one paſſage in this relation obſervable, that the Hans-towns, do not tie themſelfs to obey the Bans, and Edicts of the Imperial Diet no further than it conduceth to their own intereſt, as it appear'd by the examples of Embden, Stode and Hamburgh, in in the traverſes of this buſineſs, which towns ſtuck ſtil to the Engliſh Factories, notwithſtanding the publique tranſactions & prohibitions of the Diet to the contrary, Æneas Sylvius hath a memorable critical ſaying of the German Diets when he ſayeth omnes Germanorum Dietas eſſe valde fœcundas, et quamlibet in ventre habere alteram, Ac credible eſt quia fœmineum ſit nomen libenter impregnari, pietas eſt parturire. All the German Diets are fruitfull, in regard ev'ry one hath another commonly in its belly, and 'tis credible becauſe Diet is of the Fæminine gender ſhe is more willing to be got with Child; wherunto alluded alſo the ſaying of Charles the fift, viz. That the German Diets were like Vipers, for as theſe deſtroy their Damms, ſo the latter Decrees of Diets deſtroy the former.

I have dwelt longer upon this particular, than my propos'd brevity requir'd, but the Hans being that part of the Empire with whom England hath moſt correſpondence in point of negotiation and comerce, I ſuffred my ſelf to be tranſported till my pen came to a full period.

The fift Section.

A parallel twixt the Empire paſsd, and the preſent, with the cauſes of the declination therof, &c.

THough by the tru rule of proportion, no parallel can be made 'twixt the Roman Empire paſs'd, and the preſent, no more than 'twixt an Eagle and a Wren, yet becauſe comparisons and examples conduce much to the elucidation of things, ſomthing ſhall be ſaid to that point.

The Roman Monarchy when ſhe was at the higheſt altitude of greatneſs, and glory, may be ſayed to have had no horizon, while ſhe ſate upon her ſeven Hills ſhe may be ſayed to have overlook'd the World; She was once fifty miles in circuit, and five hundred thouſant free Citizens were computed to be within her Walls, by that famous cenſe which was made that Vopiſcus relates; The Roman Eagle fix'd his talons upon the Banks of Euphrates Eaſtward, on the Nile South, on the Danube and the Rhin Northward, and flew Weſt as farr as the Britiſh and German Seas; Her annual revenues were then computed at a hundred and fifty millions, wherof the ſalary of her legionary Soldiers amounted to above twenty Milions; ſome of her Generals uſually brought ten thouſand talents into her erarium, her Exchequer, at their return from abroad, and Gabinius twenty thouſand; Som of her Emperours are recorded to have ſtrew'd the Amphitheater with gold ſand in their publique ſpectacles, & triumphs, ſo ſhe might well have taken then the 5 Vowels for her ſymbole A, E, I, O, V, which ſignified,

A-

Aquila, Electa, Iustè, Omnia, Vincit. But ſhe may be ſayed to have ſhrunk ſince from a Gianteſs to a Dwarf, Inſomuch that he who hath the Empire now may be ſayed to have an Eagles feather only in his Capp, for he muſt have ſomthing of his own to ſupport the ſacred Ceſarian Majeſty, els he may be put to live upon Alms; Take all the tributes of the free Towns, they come but to five thouſand Crowns a yeer, but for any tru fundum, or Real eſtate ther's none; He depends meerly upon the pleſure of the Diet for all publique pecuniary erogations, and taxes; And wheras we read that Charles the fift had once ninety thouſand foot, and thirty five thouſand effectif horſe againſt Solyman, and above that nomber againſt the Lutherans, moſt of thoſe were leavied in his own Dominions, and patrimonial Territories, Inſomuch that if the Roman Eagles were not imp'd with Auſtrian feathers they wold be as bald as a Coot.

Yet Germany or Almain, as the knowing ſtatiſts have delivered their opinions, is a continent of that large expanſion, and ſo well peepled, that take the whole bulk together ſhe is able to rayſe two hundred thouſand effectif men, and maintain them by a general unanimous contribution.

Now, my Lord, if you deſire to know the reaſon of this ſo great an alteration and decay of the Roman Empire, ther were many cauſes concurr'd therunto, the main cauſe was touch'd before, viz. the tranſlation of Cæſars Court from Rome to Conſtantinople, wh erby Italy, and the reſt of the Weſtern parts of the Empire were left obvious and as a prey to other Nations; Add herunto the diſmembring of the Empire into Eaſt and Weſt, with other accidents pointed at before.

But for the declination of the Occidental Empire founded by Charlemain, ther was a greater concurrence of cauſes; Firſt the unhappy partition that Lewis the Gentle Charlemains Son, made of the Empire to find a-pannage and portions for his Sons, wherof he had three; Adde herunto, that when the Em-

Empire came to be within the German pale, and Italy became but a Province to Germany, being to be disposd of by the Colledg of Electors, They who aspir'd to be Emperours, or to have their Sons to succeed them us'd to prepossesse, and oblige the Electors by donatifs, and indeed no lesse than bribes, as Charles the fourth to make his Son VVenceslaus capable to succeed him, offer'd them a hundred thousand Florins apeece, as Æneas Sylvius hath it, but having no ready money to satisfy them, he transferr'd, and pass'd over som Imperial townes unto them, wherof the Count Palatin of the Rhin had three for his share at one time, viz. Openheim, Inquelien, & Keyserlausen. It is recorded in the Imperial Annals that Gerardus Archbishop of Mentz was call'd pro pola Imperii, the Hucster of the Empire, and having conspir'd with others of his Complices against Albert the first, and design'd to elect another Emperour, the sayed Gerardus having a hunting horn about him, and being a potent popular man, he winded out these words In hoc cornu complures gesto Cæsares, In this horn I carry many Keysars, viz. Cæsars; The Empour taking this in indignation, by the speciall benediction of Heaven, he was quit with him, and his confederats afterwards, by making them carry doggs about the Countrey so many miles, which is acccounted in Germany the disgracefullest and most opproprious kind of punishment that can be inflicted upon a Nobleman, or Gentleman, wheras a Boore or Plebean is condemn'd according to the quality of his offence to carry only a Chair from one County to another; such a peculiar punishment ther was of old in France, for wheras ther was a law call'd la loy de la chevelure that none shold wear long hair but the Nobles, he who had committed any degenerous offence was adjudg'd to have his hair cutt off before the tribunal of Iustice, and so was degraded from being a gentleman, his honor going away with his hair, and so made a Roturier or Yeoman: The story tells us that the Emperour Frederique derique Barbaroſſa made Hermannus Count Palatin of the Rhin, and ten Counts more to carry dogs above one German mile, for the prædations, and ill balancing of dollars, with other inſolences they had committed while he was in Italy warring with the Pope, againſt whom we read he had twelve pitched battails.

Such another claſh the Emperour Conradus had with Guelphus Duke of Bavaria, who bore up a good while againſt him, at laſt the Emperour, recruting his Army with Italian Auxiliaries, ſhut up the Duke in VVinsberga, and beleagred him ſo cloſe that he was ready to famiſh; And the Emperour having bin provok'd ſo farr that he had vow'd to put all to fyre and ſword, The Ducheſſe being a comely couragious Lady went through the throng of the army into the Emperours tent, and made ſuch a flexanimous ſpeech which ſo melted the Emperour, that he publiſh'd a proclamation, that for her ſake all the Women of VVinsberga ſhold have ſafe conduct to depart and carry away upon their backs as much of their moſt precious wealth that they could bear. Herupon the Dutcheſſe took the Duke upon her back, and evry wife by her example her husband, mayds and unmarried women took up their brothers, and kindred, and ſo all marched out; The Emperour being much taken with this witty peece of humanity, publiſh'd a generall act of Amneſtia, and ſo the Duke was redintegrated into his favor. This memorable ſtory I couch'd once into verſe, being a task impos'd upon me, and the Epigram runns thus.

to

Tempore quo Bavarum ſuperârat Roma Gu-Seria feſtivo Res fuit acta joco; (elphum, Conradus victor VVinsbergam obſeſſerat (Vrbem,
Hinc fame, Deditio facta, premente, fuit;
Matribus at miſerans Bavaris, ſponſa, Guelphi, Induperator iis tale Diploma dedit;
Quælibet ut Mulier ſuto cum Rebus (abiret

Quas humeris posset sustinuisse suis.
Cum reliquis Comitissa novo Diplomate (nixa
Indo viros portant, pondera grata, suos.
Pendebant collo nati natæq; lacertis
Sic abiit licita Fœmina Virq; fugâ;
Hac delectatus Cæsar pietate, pepercit
Omnibus, atq; novum cum Duce fœdus (init.

But to return where we left, another cause of the Empours decay, was, that being often reduc'd to som exigents for want of money, they us'd to have recours to the richest Imperial towns for a supply, who us'd to lend them money, and the Emperours payed them their money back with immunities; Many towns in Italy got their necks out of Cæsars yoak this way, and som of them very cheap, as Florence, for it cost her but six thousand Crownes, and Luca ten thousand; &c. In so much that the liberties of most of the free Citties of Italy, much more of high and low Germany, sprung out of the necessities of the Em-

Emperours, wherby their power as well as their glory did daylie decline; Adde herunto that the Biſhopps of Rome feather'd their neſts from time to time with the Eagles plumes, ſpecially in Italy, for beſides the City of Rome, and the Countreys adjacent, ſuch was the high reverence the Church had in thoſe daies that many other territories were given to the Apoſtolical See, and ſince, by well devoted Princes, Inſomuch that the Pope is grown herby to he a great temporal Prince, for the ſtate of the Church extends above three hundred miles in length, and about two hundred miles in breadth; It contains the Dutchy of Ferrara, Bologna, Romania, the Marquiſat of Ancona, Sabina, Perugia, with a part of Toſcany, the Patrimony of Saint Peter, and Latium; in theſe there are above 50 Biſhopricks; He doth ſignorize alſo over the Dutchy of Spoleto and the Exarchat of Ravenna, he hath the Towns of Benevento in the Kingdom of Naples, and the County of Veniſſe in France call'd Avignon, he hath title good enough to

Naples

Naples alſo herſelf, and Calabria, but rather than incurr the dipleſure of the King of Spain his Champion, and chief ſupporter of his Chair, he is contented with an annual heriot of a white Mule with a purſfull of piſtols about her neck; He pretends alſo to be Lord paramount of Sicily, Urbin, Parma, and Maſſeran, as alſo of Norway, Ireland, and England ſince King John did proſtrat our Crown at Pandulpho his Legats feet: His Dominions reach from one Sea to another, viz. from the Tyrrhene to the Adriatique, and theſe Territories run through the center of Italy, which enables the Pope to do good or harm to the Princes about him, and makes him capable to be an Vmpire, or a potent Enemy, his authority being mixt twixt ſecular and ſpiritual, for he can uſe the ſword, and thunder-bolt of Excommunication at pleſure; And (to return to our chief ſubject) moſt of the Countreys pointed at before being feathers of the Eagle did much decreaſe her ſtrength.

Moreover, as the Roman Church did this this way impair the power of the Empire, so the Reformed Church, and the difference of Religion in Germany did much enfeeble it; For those Princes who turn'd Lutherans daylie encroach'd upon, and impropriated the demeans of the Church, which was a great support to the Emperour, being more devoted to him; than to the secular Princes.

But to go a little more particularly to work, we will not rove in Asia and Afrique where so many mighty parts of the Continent fell from the Roman Empire, nor will we look so farr back in Europe as to speak of the defection of Spain, France, and Great Britain, which was the first Province that fell from Rome, though indeed Rome may be sayed to have fallen first from Her, being not able by reason of warrs she had in other Countreys, to protect the Britains against the Picts, as England sayes now in point of Religion that she had never fallen away from Rome, unlesse Rome had fallen from her self; I say we will not look so fart back, but come

come to more modern Times since the Empire came within the German pale, The Swisses were one of the last that revolted, who being summon'd to the Imperiall Chamber at Spire, they sent a rough hewn Ambassadors to tell the Imperial Councel in these words, Domini confœderati Heluetii vos vicinos suos salvere jubent, mirantur verò quod tam crebris citationibus, &c. The Lords Confœderats of Switzerland do greet you their Neighbours, but they wonder that by your so frequent citations you wold disquiet Them, therfore they pray and exhort you, that you would no further molest Them. In Charles the fifts time the Livonians fell off, and He summoning them to their obedience, and menacing to reduce them otherwise by force, they sent him a geering Answer, That they beleev'd his Horse wold tyre before he could reach the skirts of Liefland, as Thuanus hath it. A German Author hath it upon record, that since the reign of Rodolph the first, above two hundred States and Princes have un-membred, and emancipated themthemſelfs from the German Emperour, who were us'd to obey his ſummons, & make their apparance accordingly.

Touching Germany it ſelf, 'tis tru, that it is a huge Continent, and full of Princes, which make ſom compare her to a Firmament ſpangled with Stars; Others compare the Emperour to a great Luminary incircled with the ſeven Planets, meaning the Septemvirat, or the Colledg of Electors, and not improperly, for this agrees with the Cæſarean Arms, which are Sol, Saturn arm'd, and crown'd Mars, and the Eagle diſplayed with two heads; yet, though therby the Emperour be call'd Rex Regum, theſe Princes are prejudicial to his greatneſ, wherof Ibraim Ambaſſador to Solyman the great Turk gave a hint by an ingenuous Fable which was thus; When Maximilian the ſecond was choſen Emperour, the foreſayed Ibraim was then at Frankfort, who having bin a Spectator to the ceremony, and obſerv'd what great Princes attended the Emperour that day, and being told that ſom of them them could rayſe an Army of themſelfs, and maintain it againſt any power, The Ambaſſador ſmilingly ſayed, That he doubted not of the puiſſance of Germany, but he obſerv'd that the Minds and Actions, the Counſels and Intereſts of the Germans were like a beaſt with many heads, and tayls, which in caſe of neceſſity being to paſs through a hedg, and ev'ry head ſeeking to find a particular hole to paſs thorough, they were a hindrance one to another, ev'ry head drawing after his own fancy, and ſo hazarded the deſtruction both of all the heads body & tayls: But the Empire of Solyman his great Maſter was like a beaſt with many tayls, yet ſhe had but one head, which head being to get thorough or over any paſſage, without any confuſion, or difference of fancy, all the tayls, and the whole body follow'd ſmoothly after.

Laſtly, the fatallſt cauſe of the delay of Cæſar was the monſtrous ſucceſſes of the Mahumetan, whoſe half Moon fill'd out of the wane of the Roman Empire both East and West, It being a sad saying, that wherſoever the Turkiſh horſe ſets once his foot, there's no Chriſtian graſſe will ever grow there again.

THE

The sixth Section,

Of enlarging the Colledg of Electors from seven to an Octumvirat, And the Conteſt that is now twixt the Count Palatin of the Rhin, and the Duke of Bavaria touching the Vicarſhip of the Empire.

THe attempting the Crown of Bohemia by Frederique Count Palatin of the Rhin, as it prov'd unſucceſsfull unto himſelf and Family, ſo it prov'd fatal to all Chriſtendom beſides (as the preceding Comet did foretell An. 1618.) for directly or collaterally it hath bin the cauſe of all the warrs that happen'd ever ſince in Chriſtendome, which made King Iames, as if he had bin Prophet as well as Prince, to ſay unto his privy Councell, upon the firſt tydings which were brought him that his ſon-in-law was gone to Prague, My Lords, this is a ſad buſineſs, and the youngeſt man amongſt us ſhall not live to ſee the end of it which prov'd tru.

The Bohemian Crown was firſt offer'd by the Revolters to the Duke of Saxony, but hee out of a political prudence, as well as out of the fidelity and alleageance he ow'd the Emperour, declin'd it; Then they reflected upon the Count Palatin of the Rhin as a Prince that might be par negotio, and able to go through-ſtitch with it, In regard of his powerful alliances, The King of great Britain being his Father-in-law, the King of Denmark his Onckle, the ſtates of Holland his confederatts, and Maurice Prince of Orenge with the Duke of Bovillon (who was was call'd the old Ardenian fox) being alſo his Oncles, which laſt three, incited him firſt unto that great Attempt, though he paus'd a good while upon it, and reſolv'd twice to decline it, till his lady ſeem'd to reproch his puſillanimity, telling him, Had you Sir, the courage to venture upon a King of great Britains ſole Daughter, and will you not venture upon a Crown when 'tis offer'd you?

The Count Palatin then was look'd upon as one of the fortunatſt Princes in Germany, Having the beſt lady in his bed, the beſt ſtable of horſes, the beſt library of Books, the beſt cellar of wine of any of the reſt.

Maximilian the old Duke of Bavaria, ſtuck cloſe to the Emperour in this quartell, for by his aſſiſtance and conduct an army of 25000. was routed by leſſe then fifteen thouſand, and the City of Prague with the whole Kingdom was recover'd for the Emperour; On the otherſide by the arms of the King of Spain and the conduct of Marquis Spinola the Palatinat was conquer'd, though the Princes of the Vnion had an Army of forty thousand effectif men under, the Marquis of Ansback and others to defend it, but 'twas sayed that dolus versabatur in Generalibus, that the Generals were corrupted, and that the acqueſt was made more by Spaniſh piſtolls, than by Spinola's Sword.

Heropon at a ſolemn Aſſembly of the Electors at Ratisbon Anno 1623, the Electorſhip of the Rhin, and the Archidapiferſhip, with all the prerogatives, and perquiſits, the authorities and enfranchiſements, and honors annexed therunto was conferr'd upon the Duke of Bavaria for term of life; But in another Aſſembly 1628, which was five yeers after at Prague, this great Grant was not only confirm'd unto him during his own life, but entayl'd upon his Heirs to Perpetuity, and withall, the upper Palatinat was tranſferr'd unto him, with the County of Cham in conſideration of his expences in the wars, which amounted to thirteen million of Dollars.

But

But in the Treaties at Munſter and Oſnabrug Anno 1652, fower and twenty yeers after, this Grant was qualified, that in caſe the Gulihelmian line which is the Houſe of Bavaria did fayl without Maſculine iſſue, the Electorſhip of the Rhin, with the Archidapiferſhip and all the prerogatives therof ſhold revert to the Rodulphian line which is the Palatin, being the elder Houſe of the two.

Now, concerning the Gulielmian or Bavarian line ther are but 4 living, wherof two are Churchmen, viz. the Archbiſhop of Colen, and the Biſhop of Frizing, which can leave no iſſue behind; Then is ther the now Duke of BAVARIA and his Brother, nor are they alſo likely to get iſſue, for as the Tradition in Germany goes Maximilian the former Duke of Bavaria having maried the laſt Emperours Siſter who was young, and the Duke being old and crazy having 5 iſſues then about his body, ther were ſome Jeſuitts that brought ſuch a prolifical cordial from Italy that enabled the old Duke to get children, but those Children shold be impotent and barren, as it hath hitherto prov'd tru, insomuch the Palsgrave is in fair hopes to get the Electorship of the Rhin again in a short time, and then the eighth Electorship must be extinguished.

Besides, publicæ tranquillitatis causa, as the Instrumentum pacis hath it, for setling a firm and general everlasting peace in Germany which had bin so miserably depopulated and torn by the late wars, which had not only scratch'd her face, but rent her very bowels, for about thirty yeers together, as also for diremption of all strife for the future, The Count Palatin was created the eighth Elector, which is term'd in the Instrument by a new coynd Epithet or logical term simultanea Investitura, a joint or contemporary Investiture; And because ther's an office annexed to ev'ry Electorat, he was made Arch-treasurer of the Empire, which he executed at the Election of the last King of the Romans, and the coronation of the Empresse at Ratisbon, by by throwing Medaills ſome of Gold, ſome of Sylver among the peeple; under this notion he hath a ſeſsion and ſuffrage in the Colledg of Electors, but he muſt be content to ſitt laſt of all; Moreover by the ſaid Inſtrument of Accommodation at Munſter, he was to renounce all right pro tempore not only to the upper Palatinat, and the County of Cham, but he was to part with the Bergſtrad (one of the beſt parts of the lower Palatinat) and re-deliver it to the Archbiſhop of Mentz, who had oppignorated, and pawn'd it to his Anceſtor Anno 1463 for a ſum of money, but cum pacto perpetuæ reluitionis, with a proviſo that it might be redeem'd at all times.

The Emperour Ferdinand the third, being not long ſince dead ther aroſe a conteſt, which continues ſtill undecided, 'twixt the Elector Palatin, and his Coſen, and Co-elector the Duke of Bavaria about the Vicarſhip of the Roman Empire; And to illuſtrat this point the better it muſt be underſtood that by the ſundamental laws of the Empire, exemplified in the Aurea Bulla, it is enacted, that in the absence of the Emperour (who was us'd oft in former times to crosse the Alpes to Italy) or after his death during the vacancy or Interregnum, ther were two Vicars or Imperial Deputies appointed to manage the affaires of the Empire, to witt the Count Palatin of the Rhin, for the jurisdictions of Franconia, Suevia, and the Country about the Rhin, And the Duke of Saxony for those large Territories that lay within that Circle; The Bavarian alledgeth that this prerogative of Vicarship appertain'd unto the Count Palatin of the Rhin ratione Electoratus, by vertu of the Electorship, & the office of Archidapifer or chief Sewer of the sacred Empire, for which he produceth the Golden Bull both in the Original Latin, and also translated into Dutch; Hee takes also the great Instrument of Munster for his buckler, wherin the sayed Electorship of the Rhin, and the ofice of Archsewership with all the prerogatives, perquisits, and appendix-

Em-

es

es therunto belonging, wherof the Vicarſhip is the chiefeſt, is totally transferr'd uuto Him and his Iſſue Male to perpetuity.

The Count Palatin utterly depies that, and poſitively affirmeth that this office and prerogative of Vicariat was conferr'd upon him and practis'd by his progenitors before ever the Colledg of Electors, and the ſubſequent Aurea Bulla was conſtituted, which Bull or Magna Charta of the German Empire was not the Donor but confirmer only of that great Anceſtrial prerogative which inconcuſſa conſuetudine, by an unſhaken cuſtom belong'd to his family; Avouching further, that it is an Annexum inſeparabile Comitatus, That it is an Heirloome of the County Palatin of the Rhin, in which County he was formally and plenarily reinveſted in the yeer 1652: He excepts likewiſe againſt the tranſlation of the ſayed Aurea Bulla into the Teutonique, or High Dutch, alleadging it is erroneous in many paſſages; And laſtly concludes that his Progenitors enjoyed this this prerogative of Vicariat, ratione Comitatus, not Electoratus, as may be inferr'd out of the politicall reason why that office was conferr'd upon his Anceſtors wch was in regard of thepoſition oftheir ditions & Territories which lye appoſit & proper to have the goverment of thoſe Countreys of Franconia Svevia, &c. becauſe they are ſituated neer, & ſom of them conterminant with the Rhin. This controverſy remains ſtill indecided; In the interim the proteſtants of thoſe parts make their addreſſes to the Count Palatin, and the Roman Catholiques to the Bavarian as their occaſions require, either for renewing or letting of leaſes, the forfeiture of Felons goods, the protection of Idiots, and Lunatiques, &c.

The

The ſeventh Section.

Some Reflexes made upon the preſent Coniuncture of Things, and the political condition of Germany, with a Coniecture who is likely to be King of the Romans, and conſequently the next Emperour.

HAving allready, my Lord, in a Succinct, but I hope, ſome Satisfactory way treated of the German Empire pire, of the Octumvirat, or Colledg of Electors, with other matters Concident, and homogeneous with this ſubject, I ſhall now wind up this ſmall bottome, and conclude with ſome glances upon the preſent Eſtate of Germany, together with the particular Intereſts therof.

Your Lordſhip hath read before that the Office of Emperour, in ſtatu quo nunc, is meerly a Title, and like a feather in one's capp, whoſoever undertakes it muſt have pillars of his own to ſupport it; Now among the Princes of Germany, the Duke of Saxony, next after the Houſe of Auſtria, is thought to be beſt able to bear the three Imperial Crowns, and at the late Emperours death he began to be much ſpoken of, but (as an Obſerving gentleman, who came lately thence, told mee) all the peeple that are under his ſubjection did riſe up, and with open mouth proteſted againſt it, cryeng out that they wold put themſelfs under the protection of another Prince, if he wold be the Keyſar;

Now,

Now, the reaſon is, that if the Elector of Saxe were Emperour, he muſt of neceſſity enhance their tolls and taxes to ſupport the Dignity.

The Duke of Bavaria ſince he hath bin inveſted in the upper Palatinat, and the County of Cham, is grown very conſiderable, and to be able to counterpoiſe the Saxe in power, their yeerly revenues amounting to above a million of rich dollars apeece; Beſides, the Bavarian Sylver mines have wonderfully thriven of late yeers both for the pureneſs, and quantity of Bullion; And if Maximilian the former Duke of Bavaria could lay out thirteen millions for the ſervice of the Emperour, in conſideration wherof he had at firſt a part of the Territories of Auſtria hypothequ'd unto him, and afterwards the upper Palts and the County of Cham transferr'd unto him, together with the Electorſhip of the Rhin in full and valuable ſatisfaction of the ſaid 13 millions, I ſay if the former Duke was ſo powerfull, it may be well inferr'd that the preſent Duke is much more,

by

by the new acquests he hath made, and so might be capable of the Empire, but notwithstanding that the French is sayed to spurr him on, and that the Elector of Colen be his Oncle, yet 'tis not probable he will make any competition with his Cousin-germin the King of Hungary, his peeple like them of Saxony being also very averse therunto, though his peeple be in a surer way of subjection and vassalage unto him, than other Germans are, ther being no great ones in his Dominions to clash with him.

Touching the Marquis of Brandenburg, though he be great Master of the Teutonique Order, and hath such spacious and large Territories that he can go upon his own demeans above 500 miles from Cleve to the furthest parts of Prussia, yet is he thought to be inferiorto the other two in revenues & wealth, therfore the lesse able to bear the weight of the German Empire; Adde herunto that of the eight Electors, five are still Roman Catholiques, so that it is improbable, a Protestant shold be choſen; for ther are ſuch ceremonies to be perform'd that are incompatible with a Proteſtant, beſides the Pope wold never confirm ſuch an Emperour, and without his confirmation no Emperour can be call'd Auguſtus.

Touching the King of Denmark though he be capable of the Empire being a kind of German, yet the nature of thoſe Kings and peeple hath bin rather to preſerve what they have than to extend their Country further; Moreover the preſent King is ingag'd in an open war againſt the Swed; Ther is alſo a late clash twixt him, and the town of Hamborough about the Huldygen, which is an Inauguration to be her Protector, as his Father was: for Hamborough was built upon, and ſtands ſtill upon the King of Denmarks ground; yet ſhe refuſeth to Huld him, alledging that ſhe bought him out for great ſummes of money; And ſo pretends to be now an Imperial free Town, and to hold ſolely from the Keyſer; Wheras others averre that ſhe is meer Hanſiatique within the Verge of Lubeck her Neighbour, bour, which is the chiefest of the first Precinct of the old Hans, as was touch'd before.

Adde herunto that the last King of Denmark hath some particular obligations to the House of Austria, his great Gran-mother having bin Charles the fifts Sister. Besides, when General Tilly was like in the eye of human reson with a Veteran victorious Army to overcom all Holsteyn, Ferdinand this King of Hungaries Gran-father made a friendly, and favourable peace with Christian the fourth, who had invaded Germany with a considerable Army, but with little succesſe, in the behalf of the Count Palatin of the Rhin his Nephew.

The Swed mought have bad fair for the Imperial Golden Apple had he took firmer footing in Poland, and succeeded in his notable designs further; Nay, his Army being compos'd of Soldiers of Fortune, might still by new recreuts as they push'd on their hopes, have prov'd in time as formidable, and fatal to the rest of Christendome as their their Anceſtors the Goths and Vandales were of old, who pierc'd the very center of Europe to find warmer habitations.

Nor was the Swed altogether incapable to have ſtood for it in regard of thoſe Territories which Guſtavus got, and annexed to the Crown of Sweden within the pale of the Empire, viz. Pomerland, and Breme; But the Dane entring into a new warr with him, and the Marquis of Brandenburg deſerting him, and having the Houſe of Auſtria, the Pole, the Moſcovit his actual enemies beſides, 'tis thought his hopes are blaſted for enlarging his dominions at this time, but 'tis well if he can now ſecure Sweden it ſelf, much more the new acqueſts aforeſaid in Germany; ſpecially his friends (viz. England and France) being ſo remote from him, and his enemies ſo neer about him.

The French King, though I beleeve he be in deſpair to have it himſelf, he being Exterus & non Germanus, a Stranger and no German, and ther being a fundamental Law that no Forrener be Emperour, as ther is a Sanction in the Conclave among the Cardinals, that no Tramontane, viz. one born this side the Alps can be Pope, I say, though the King of France looks not for it himself, yet he spends all the intrests he hath, and is like to employ all the power he can with all the Artificies besides to cajoll, I will not say, corrupt the Electors for the secluding of the young King of Hungary, and that the Empire shold not be alwayes a prostitut to one Family. But France they say hath few real Friends in Germany among the Princes; 'Tis true the Elector of Tryers being perpetual Arch-chancelor of France, hath always bin, and is still Fleurdelizé, he is Flowdeliz'd and Frenchified all over, and France alwaies sticks to him also upon all occasions; 'twas about him that ther was such a counterbuff 'twixt Lewis the thirteenth, and Gustaphus Adolphus, because he had invaded part of his Territories; 'twas for his sake, besides the still growing greatnesse of

Spain,

Spain, that this preſent warr was denounc'd by ſound ofHerald againſt the Houſe of Auſtria, by the laſt French King: Moreover, 'tis tru that the Marquis of Brandenburg while he lately adher'd to the Swed was devoted to France, but ſince he hath accommodated matters with the Pole, he hath chang'd his intereſt, and is like to enter into the general league they ſpeak of to be made between the Princes of the Empire for preſerving the common peace of Germany againſt all that ſhall attempt to diſturb it; And beſides the Electors themſelfs, The Duke of Brunſwick, Prince of Anhalt, Luneberg, Lawenburg, the Landgrave of Heſſe, Darmſtad't, Baden, Newburgh, Wittemburgh, though the laſt, and ſome of the other ſmell rank of the French intereſt, yet to prevent a new warr in Germany they are like to enter into the foreſayed Patrial league, together with all the Imperial and Hanſiatical Towns.

Touching the Palſgrave, or Prince Palatinof the Rhin, 'tis tru that ther hath bin agreat deal of intimacy, and reciprocal leagues twixt his Progenitors, and France, but the last Emperour and his Son the King of the Romans oblig'd him (and his brother Prince Rupert) by many recent civilities; At the Treaties of Osnabrug, and Munster the Emperour wold have his busines to be dispatch'd first, and was very indulgent of him all along the while; The fower hundred thousand dollars which were assign'd himself, and to make portions and apennages for his younger brothers, the twenty thousand dollars that were awarded the Lady Dowager his mother pro victalitio, and the ten thousand dollars which were assign'd for dowries to evry one of his Sisters, were all granted as the words of the Instrument run pro benevolo Suæ Majestatis Cæsareæ affectu ergo domum Palatinam, for the benevolent affection his Imperial Majesty bore to the family of the Palatin, which summes the Emperour punctually payed; Moreover at the coronation of the Empresse, and the creation of the last King of the Romans

mans, the Prince Palatin officiated in perſon, and ther were many Endearments paſs'd twixt the Emperour, and him; In ſo much that 'tis thought he will be no back frend to his ſon the now King of Hungary when the buſines of Election comes to be canvas'd.

Theſe Premiſſes, & particular intereſts being well conſidered, in the eye of all humane probality 'tis thought, that the laſt Emperours ſon Leopoldus Ignatius, now King of Bohemia and Hungary, &c. and being one of the Electors himſelf, and chiefeſt of the Temporals, is like to be the man, and make the fourtinth Emperour of a direct Auſtrian line; And they who think thus, ground their conjectures upon divers reaſons deduc'd from the preſent poſture of things.

Firſt, becauſe the Iunta, or Aſſembly of the Princes Electors is ſtil deferr'd, and like to be ſo, till the ſayed King of Hungary be come to his Majoriry, which by the German law in this point is at eighteen yeers, and this will be in June next; then being out of his baſſage, or minority, he is capable both to be King of the Romans, and to have a ſuffrage among the Electors as he is King of Bohemia, and Archbuttler of the ſacred Empire.

Secondly, becauſe if the King of Hungary have the canvas, and be rejected, ther will be an inevitable warr in Germany, which ſhe will avoyd if poſſible ſhe can, having had not only her face ſcratch'd, but her very entrails rent aſunder for ſo many yeers by a cruentous lingring warr, and the deep wounds ſhe receav'd thence are not yet conſolidated in ſom places.

Thirdly, becauſe ther is no Prince ſo potent and proper to bear the weight of this great burden than the King of Hungary, or to keep out and encounter the Common Enemy, to witt, the Turk, as Hee, for he hath not only moſt of the Dominions of Auſtria, but two Kingdomes beſides ſituated on the confines, and ſerving as ramparts againſt him by land, as the Republique of Venice doth by ſea; Inſomuch that both the danger, as well as ſecu-

ſecurity of the Houſe of Auſtria is involv'd with the Empire it ſelf, and indeed of all Europe. Now we ſhall find all theſe Countreys in the title of the laſt Emperour, which runns as followe's.

Ferdinandus tertius divinâ favente clementia electus Romanorum Imperator, ſemper Auguſtus, Ac Germaniæ, Hungariæ, Bohemiæ, Dalmatiæ, Croatiæ, Slavoniæ, &c. Rex, Archidux Auſtriæ, Dux Burgundiæ, Brabantiæ, Stiriæ, Carinthiæ, Carniolæ, &c. Marchio Moraviæ, Dux Lucemburgiæ, ac ſuperioris & inferioris Sileſiæ, Wittemburgiæ, & Teckæ, Princeps Sveviæ, Comes Haſpurgi, & Gloritiæ, Langravius Alſatiæ, Marchio ſacri Imperii Romani, Burgaviæ, ac ſuperioris, et inferioris Luſatiæ, Dominus Marchiæ Slavonicæ, portus Naonis, & Salinarum, &c.

In this accumulation of eight and twenty titles ther are but two that he had from the Empire, viz. the ſtile of Emperour, and King of Germany, all the reſt are appendixes of the Houſe of Auſtria; And the King of Spain who who is of the elder House hath many more, being great granchild to the Emperour Charles le Quint, who made a spontaneous Resignation of the Empire to Ferdinand his second brother, though as a privat Author hath it, the second day after his resignation, was the first day of his repentance.

Now, to rayse up the House of Austria to this altitude, six of the greatest Families of Europe concentred in one, viz. Austria, Burgundy, Castile, Aragon, Hungary, and Portugal, so that it may be call'd a palace six stories high, (though as Emperour he hath not a house to hide his head in) Austriacum Domus Armipotens sex fulta columnis.

Fourthly, because the House of Austria hath the good wishes of the Pope, and of the Jesuits, who underhand do good offices for him, though the Pope dare not appeer publiquely in the business for fear of giving any distaste to France; For he may be sayed to hold France, and Portugal also, alſo, as one doth a Dog by the ears, fearing they ſhold run away from him to Patriarks of their own making; Nor hath any King in Chriſtendom a greater temptation to fall away from Rome, in regard the Gallican Church, by a late computation which was made, hath above three hundred and forty millions of liures in annual revenue, which, ſhold he renounce the Pope, wold devolve moſt of it to the Crown.

Moreover, this Gentleman told me that the Electors, with the Princes and Cities of Empire, are more and more ſenſible to find the King of France ſhold appeer ſo much, and as ſom write, intrude himſelf into this buſineſ, by ſending Ambaſſadors with ſuch gawdy trains, whoſe rich liureys are like to be worn out before the Election day, ſo that they had needed to have brought a Lantern and Candle with them comming ſo long before day, as one made a Paſquill of them in Frankfort, who with ſom difficulty did open her Gates unto unto them, it being an ancient Conſtitution of the Empire, that none ſhold be admitted to lodge in the Town where the Election is to be held, but the Princes Electors themſelfs and their train, which come to nere upon two thouſand horſe; But the Germans are more ſenſible and ſtartled, that the French ſhold draw ſuch forces to their Frontires as to Metz, Philiptburg, and Briſack (for Briſack-bridg makes now France and Germany one continued piece,) as if ther wer a deſign hereby to controul the Electors in their choice, and embroyl Germany again in a warr; which puts the young King of Hungary to extraordinary expences, of making new levies, Inſomuch that he will have by the next Spring, as they write, an Army of 50 thouſand effectif men, to confront the French.

But indeed it may be wondred ther ſhold be any ambition at all, of aſpiring to the Roman German Empire in ſtatu quo nunc, it being but an ayrie bare ſhadowy title, or a Skeleton of part

part of the old Roman Monarchy, Therfore a late German Author confeſſeth, Quod nobis eſt magnum momentum politicum, Exteris eſt magnum deridiculum, That which we make to be of ſo high political a conſequence, ſeems to Forreners to be but a thing of laughter, alluding to that adoe ther is us'd about the election of an Emperour, as in Venice to creat a Doge who in point of power is no other than teſta di legno a head of wood.

Nor are thoſe who live under the Empire tyed to ſo ſtrict an obedience, ther is not that exact relation, and reciprocation of ſubjection, and protection 'twixt the Emperour and his Vaſſals, as uſeth to be 'twixt Prince and Peeple in other places, where the Liegeman is bound to ſubmit, and the Liegelord is bound to defend; Touching the later, he ſpoke like a Statiſt, that ſayed, Defendere ſubditos eſt attributum naturale inhærens viſceribus Regiminis, eſt qualitas infixa oſſibus, et indiviſibilis, ita ut regimen, & protectio unum & idem judicatur indiviſible. Defence of the Sub-

Subject is a natural attribut inhæring in the very bowels of Goverment, 'tis a quality infix'd in the very bones therof, Insomuch that Protection and Goverment is adjudg'd to be the self same indivisible thing: 'Tis not so in the Imperial Government, wher ther is a looser kind of Clientele, and Protection; Nor is the submission of the Liegeman so absolut, for an Imperial Ban is not so much obey'd there as an Edict in France, a Prematica in Spain, a Proclamation in England, or a Placart in the Netherlands, wher ther is a more punctual obligation 'twixt Prince and People, the one to obey, the other to defend their persons, and maintain their privileges; Though som do hold, that a Country giving her self to a Prince, what privileges soever the people reserve to themselfs by contract, they are all lost when they enter into subjection, which by its nature makes a man subordinat to another without any exception, whensoever the publique good is concern'd, and that those pri-privileges by the sayed subjection pass into the nature of concessions of Princes afterwards, which they may stretch, restrain, or revoke according to the urgency of their publique occasions; And when ther is a necessity to do so, the Peeple are not allow'd to revolt, or right themselfs by violence; 'Tis tru, that in all privat particular Treaties the unobservation of the Conditions, acquitts the parties from the Obligations of the contract, but this doth not reach to Soverain Princes, when the Peeple have once chosen them for their advantage, and security. But to return to our chief matter, the Princes, and Towns of the Empire, though they acknowledg the Keyser for their Soveraign, yet are they not oblig'd in that strictnes of obedience to him, as their own peeple are to them; These Princes may be sayed to be rather his Collegues, and Associats in governing rather than Subjects; It being a Rule in Germany, that Quilibet Imperii status in suo Territorio tantum possit, quantum Imperator in toto Imperio, Ev'ry state

ſtate of the Empire within his own Territory, may do as much as the Emperour in the whole Empire; They have power of life and death, they may coyn money, ſend Ambaſſadors abroad, and make confederacies, and leagues with forren Princes, with other Territorial prerogatives; But that power of making leagues was reſtrain'd in the late Treaty at Oſnabrug, for the Inſtrument ſayes, Ius faciendi fœdera liberum eſto, Ita tamen ne ejuſmodi fœdera ſint contra Imperatorem, & Imperium, pacemque ejusdem publicam, Let it be free to make confœderacies, provided that the ſayed confœderacies be not againſt the Emperour, and the Empire, with the publique peace therof; Nay further, the Princes of the Empire have ſuch a latitude of power that they write ſe regnare Dei gratia, that they Raign by the Grace of God; And that within the verge of the Empire the Princes Electors are not to give precedence to any other forren Prince; or potentat whatſoever; Therefore when Charles King of Scotland, was a few yeers since at Frankfort, the Count Palatin of the Rhin sent him word that he desir'd to give his Majesty a visit, but by the constitution of the Empire he was not to give priority of place there to any, it being an Imperial Town, but if his Majesty wold please to come to any of his own Territories he wold then respect his Majesty in that point accordingly.

Scot-

The states of the Empire have also a territorial authority, to change their Religion at plesure, by a late Constitution, where 'tis sayed, Religionis mutatio est sequela Territorialis Iurisdictionis, ac inhæret Territorio sicut nebula paludi; The alteration of Religion is a sequele of Territorial Iurisdiction, and is inhærent in the Territory as a clowd in a pond. By what hath bin spoken it appears what a small extent of power the sacred Cæsarean Majesty hath over those that professe obedience to him; Nay, when ther is a King of the Romans 'tis a question who hath the greater power the Emperour or Hee; for the Emperour and the King of the Romans may be sayed to be like two Sunnes in one Firmament, the one declining, the other rising, and the later hath more eyes upon it than the former.

By those particulars that have bin pointed at in this Section, a conjecture may be made, if not a judgment, who stands faireſt to be the next Emperour; But they who harbour some doubts of the King of Hungary, have one shrewd argument that he may go without it, which is his late encreaſe and amplitude of power, for he hath not only the large Kingdom of Bohemia with the great Territories annex'd therunto now as hereditary by way of conqueſt, but ther is an ovverture, if not an offer and privat Treaty afoot that the Crown of Poland will be entayl'd upon him, and his ſucceſſors for the future; Though this augmentation of power be good for the Chriſtian Common-Wealth in general, becauſe it enableth the Emperour to bear up the better againgſt the Common Enemy the Turk, yet not only only the Electors, but ſome other Princes of the Empire conceave ſome jealouſie of this enlargement of the Imperial power, not without ſome apprehenſions of fear, that if the Eagle ſhold renew his bill, and have his feathers come home to make his wings full ſumm'd again, hee might ſeaze upon, and make a prey of ſundry Towns, and Territories which divers of the ſayed Princes hold from the Empire but by crazy weak titles; Nay it putts a flea in the Venetians ear alſo, who have bin alwayes jealous of the Auſtrian greatnes, in regard of contiguity of Territories they both have in Dalmatia, Croatia, and other places. But it may be well expected that the Princes Electors will rather look upon the generall good and incolumity of the Chriſtian Common-Wealth, as their Oath doth bind them, which is as aſtringent, and conjuring kind of Oath as poſſibly the witt of man can draw, or deviſe, for they are not to be transported by any Paſt, Price, Promiſe, or Prayer in the Election. Which Oath runns thus.

THE

The Solemn Oath thats adminiſtred to the Princes Electors, when they meet for chooſing a KING of the ROMANS, the Spiritual having their hands upon their breaſts, the Secular upon the book all the while.

EGo R. Sacri imperii Princeps Elector, juro ad ſancta Dei E- vangelia, heic præsentialiter coram me pɔsita, quod Ego, per fidem qua Deo, & sacro Romano Imperio sum astrictus, secundum omnem discretionem, & intellectum meum, cum Dei adjutorio, eligere volo Temporale Caput populo Christiano, id est, Regem Romanorum in Cæsarem promovendum, qui ad hoc existat idoneus, in quantum discretio, & sensus mei me dirigunt, & secundum fidem prædictam, vocemque meam, & votum sive Electionem præfatam dabo absque omni Pacto, Stipendio, Precio, seu Promisso, vel quocunque modo talia valeant appellari, sic me Deus adjuvet, & omnes sancti.

I R. Prince Elector of the Sacred Empire, do swear ſwear by the holy Goſpell of God put here before me, That I by the Faith wherin I am bound to God, and the holy Roman Empire, will chooſe according to all my diſcretion & underſtanding, with the help of God, a Temporal Head for Chriſtian Peeple, to wit, a King of the Romans to be promoted to be Cæſar, one that may be idoneous for it, according as my diſcretion & ſenſes ſhal direct me; and according to my foresayed Faith I shall give my Voice, and Vote, or forenamed choice, without any Pact, Stipend, Price, or Promise, or by what names soever such things may be call'd; So help me God, and all his Saints.

This tremendous Oath is pronounc'd in Latin, the Language of the Empire in all Negotiations with forein Princes; though the Electors be enjoynd by the Great Charter of the Imperial Constitutions, viz. the Golden Bull, to to ſpeak the Teutonique or High Dutch, the Italian, and Slavonique Languages.

THE

THE COROLLARY.

THus have we caſt the Roman Monarchy as it were into the Eagles egg again, as tis recorded that Homers Iliads were once put into a Nuttſhell, and as Falconers obſerve the Eagle can leſſen her ſelf into a Lark by her high Soaring, ſo we may ſay the Roman Monarchie hath leſsn'd her ſelf by her ſtooping.

Therefore this ſmall volume is not unſuitable unto Her in point of proportion as the caſe ſtands with Her now, being ſhrivell'd from a large Folio to a Decimo ſexto, and mouldred away from a Caſtle into a Cottage, or rather from a Mountain to a Mole-hill. Such is the Method of the all-ruling Providence with whom the greateſt Kingdomes are but as Kittle-pins which he tipps down at pleaſure:

Ludit in humanis divina potentia Rebus

'Tis He who tranſvolves Monarchies, tumbles down Empires, and cantonizeth them into petty Common-wealths at pleaſure, whereunto the Pagan Philoſopher ſeem'd to allude when being asked what Iupiter did in Heaven? He anſwered Magnas ollas ollas rumpit, et ex fraſtis earum parvulas componit, He breaks great potts, and of their Fragments makes little pitchers; And remarkable it is how ſymbolizing in point of ſence and ſimilitude, the Holy Pſalmiſt is with the Philoſopher herein, when he ſayeth Tanquam vas Figuli conteres eos, Thou ſhalt bruiſe them in peeces (viz. the Potentates of the Earth) like a potters veſſel, which ſhews the brittleneſſe, the Lubricity, and unfixedneſſe of all ſublunary things as well Political as Natural, ſo that to find out a ſtability, and permanence, we muſt travel beyond Trismegiſtus circle, and ſeek it in the other World.

To conclude, having thus caſt a few glances upon the Ro-German man Empire, I hope, My Noble Lord, it will ſuffice to quitt me of that obligation I owe to your commands, which ſhall be alwayes to me as Favours, and I look upon your Favours as a conſiderable part of my Happineſ, which makes me delight ſo much in the Character of

Your moſt obedient and ever ready Servant,

Holborn
Calendis Januarii 1658.

Jam. Howell.

Infantium cerebri Quadrageſimus.

An Index of the Principal Matters contain'd in this Treatise.

A

THe Arms of the Empire Fol. 64
Alarick the Goth sacks Rome. 5
An extraordinary providence watcheth over Rome. 5
Austrian family enjoy'd the Empire more than any that ever was. 16
Arch-bishop of Mentz Prime Elector and Arch-Chancellor of Germany. 21
Arch-bishop of Colen Arch-Chancellor of Italy. 23
Arch-bishop of Triers chief Chancellor of France. 23
Arch-bishop of Magdenburg Primat of all Germany. 39
Arch-duke of Austria chief Prince of Germany after the Electors. 39

A magaanimous Speech of the Lady Elizabeth. 69
Augustus a Title soly given by the Pope. 81
The Austrian House six stories high, and how. 90.

B

B*Rennus* the Britain first ransack'd Rome. 5
Bourbon breathed his last in scaling the Walls of Rome. 5
Bohemian King chief Butler of the Empire. 23
A Ban against the English pronounc'd by the Imperial Diet, and not obey'd. 45.
Boores carry Chairs, and Nobse-men Doggs for a punishment in Germany. 56
Brandenburg hath spacious Territories. 80
Bavaria and the Palatin of the same line, this the Rodulphian, the other the Gulielmian. 71
The Bavarian Duke grown very potent o late years. 79

Brisack Bridge makes France and Germany one continued peece. 92

C

Cæsars issue enjoy'd the Empire for 6 Descents. 7
Consulary Goverment thrice in Rome by Retrogradation. 6
Claudius Cæsar first began the pernicious way of enhancing the Soldiers pay. 9
Constantines policy to the Soldiers. 10
Constantin gives Rome to the Pope. 10
Charlemain the first Western Emperour. 13
Charles Martel and his Story in brief. 13
Charlemains exploits. 14
Charlemain proclaim'd Emperour in Reme upon Christmas day. 14
Charlemains issue degenerated. 15
The Civilians exalt the Emperour by high Titles. 31
The Crown of England called an Imperial Crown by Act of Parle-

ment. 33
The Crown of France not tyed to a Diſtaff. 34
The Compariſon of Germany to a Firmament ſpangled with Stars. 64
Count Palatin of the Rhin Arch-Treaſurer of the Empire, and eighth Elector. 68
The Count Palatins Intereſts. 85

D

THe diſtance of the Roman Emperour the cauſe of the declination in the Weſt. 13
Duke of Saxony Lord high Marſhal of the Empire. 22
Duke of Brandenburg Lord Chief Chamberlain of the Empire. 23
Electors how they precede one another. 26
Domitius Nero the laſt of the race of Julius Ceſar. 36
The diviſion of Germany. 36
The Diets of Germany, or Imperial parlement. 39
Dutcheſſe of Bavaria a courageous Lady. 67

Duke

Duke of Bavaria at present impotent of getting Children, and the reasons thereof. 71
Duke of Saxony a potent Prince. 78
Divers reasons why the young King of Bohemia is fittest to be Emperour 88
Of the King of Denmark. 81

E

THe Empire of Rome put often to sale by the Soldiery. 10
The exorbitances of the Roman militia. 10
English and French descended of the Germans. 12
The Eastern Empire. 12
The Exarchat of Italy given to the Pope by King Pepin. 14
The Empire devolv'd to the Germans. 15
Electors first constituted. 21
Emperours but Thou'd at first. 29
The Emperours next to God Almighty on Earth. 32
Edgar an Empesour, and his high Titles. 32

Edward the third of England, Vicar of the Empire, &c. 33
Embden a great friend to the Englisb. 45
The Englisb declar'd Monopolists in Germany. 45
The Empire now but a feather in ones Cap. 55
The Emperours Titles. 89
The Empire an airy Title in statu quo nunc. 92
The Electors bound to learn to speak Dutch, Italian, and the Slavonique. 105

F

France and Portugal like to make Patriarks of their own. 91
Furthest way about is the neareſt way home in the researches of truth. 4
A facetious comparison of the German Dietts. 49
A facetious tale of the Arch-bishop of Mentz. 55
A facetious answer of the Livlanders to Charles the fift. 63

The

The famous siege of Wimberga. 57
The Title of Emperour but an Eagles feather in ones Cap. 78

G.

Genſericus the Vandal ſacks Rome. 5
Galba the firſt Emperour choſen by the Soldiers. 7
A geer upon Rome and Venice. 11
Of the Goths and Vandals. 12
German Princes do carry Dogs for their puniſhment. 17
German Princes feather themſelfs with the Eagles Plumes. 61
Germany able to raiſe 200 thouſand electif men. 54

H

Hungary took name from the Huns. 11
Henry the ſecond in France had the firſt Title of Majeſty. 30
The high power of the King of the Romans. 37
Hans-Towns whence derived. 42
How Hamburgh firſt receiv'd the English ſtaple. 46

A hundred and fifty millions the revenues once of the Roman Monarchy. 54
How the Imperial Towns got out of Cæſars yoak. 59

I

Iulius Cæſar cimented the Empire with his blood. 7
Julianus bought the Empire of the Soldiers. 10
Imperial Towns. 42
Immunities payed for monies to the Towns of the Empire. 59
Ibraim the Turks Ambaſſador his witty Parable. 64
King Iames his prophetique ſaying. 68

K

KIngs continued in Rome 140 years. 7
King a more antient title than Emperour. 29
Kings of Spain ſometimes called Emperours. 32
King of Denmark Arch-biſhhp of Breme.

Breme 39

L

THe late Swediſh army like to have prov'd ſuch another as that of the Goths and Vandals of old. 11
Lombardy freed of the Goths by King Pepin. 14
Lutherans a great cauſe of the decay of the Empire. 62
The latitude of power which the Princes of the Empire have. 96
The lubricity of political bodies as well as natural. 108

M

THe Moors and Saracens ſack Rome. 5
The manner of electing an Emperour. 25
Majeſty aud other high titles how they began. 30
Maximilian Duke of Bavaria takes Prague from the Palatin with a leſſer army. 69

Marq-

Marq. Spinola takes the Palatinat. 69
The Mahumetan Moon filleth by the wane of the Christian Empire. 65
Of the Marquis of Brandenburg his interest. 85

N

THe names of divers of the Emperours that were put to violent deaths. 9
A notable saying of Charles Martel. 13
The names and offices of all the Electors. 21
Nothing so unlike as the present Empire and the old. 53
A notable story of a Bavarian Dutchess 57
The notable symbolisation of sense twixt the Psalmist and a Pagan Philosopher. 108

O

ONe of the cause that may oververthrow the Turkish Empire. 9
The new Ottoman Emperour must encrease

crease the Ianizaries pay. 9
Otho the third the first Establisher of the Electors. 20
The Offers of Wenceslaus to the Electors to make his Son Emperour. 55
Of the Swed. 82
The tremendous Oath the Electors take. 103

P

THe present King of Spain a Goth by descent. 12
Pepin a little man, but a great Conqueror. 14
Pope John the ninth, taken Prisoner, and his eyes pluck'd out. 20
Palatin of the Rhin Arch-sewer of the Roman Empire. 22
Parallel 'twixt the Empire pass'd, and present. 51
Palatin of the Rhin adjudg'd to carry a Dog for his punishment. 57
The Pope a great Temporal Prince. 60
The poor revenues of the Empire. 53

Q

Quarrell 'twixt Rome and Germany for chooſing the Emperour. 19
Quarrel 'twixt Queen Elizabeth, and the Hans-Towns. 43
Quarrel 'twixt the Count Palatin and the Duke of Bavaria touchiug the Vicariat of the Empire. 74
Quarrel 'twixt the King of Denmark, and Hamburgh. 81
A thing like a quarrel 'twixt the King of Scots and the Palsgrave. 97

R

THe Riſe of the Roman Empire. 5
Rome eight times raviſh'd and ranſack'd. 5
The Roman Emperours held their liſes from the Army. 8
The Roman Monarchy ſhrunk from a Gianteſs to a Dwarf.
Reaſons why the King of Hungary is likelieſt to be Emperour. 88
The revenues of the French Church 300 millions of liures aud 20. 91

S

THe ſeveral kinds of Goverments in Rome. 7
The Stewards in Scotland, and Charles Martel of France had the ſame beginning. 13
The Septemvirat or the ſeven Electors. 18
Staplers their firſt riſe. 43
The Suiſſe one of the laſt that fell from the Empire, &c. 63
The Spaniard the Popes Champion. 81
The ſmall power of the Emperour. 53
A ſad ſaying of the Turks. 66
The Spaniard comes from the elder Houſe of Auſtria. 90
The ſeveral Intereſts of the Princes of Germany. 85 of the Swede — — 82

T

TOtila the Hun ſacks Rome. 5
The tranſlation of the Empire to Conſtantinople fatal to Rome. 5
Thirty Emperours put to violent deaths by the Army. 8

Two

Two Turkish Emperours kill'd in less than 25 years. 9
A Tradition remarkable how the House of Austria came to be so great. 26
The Turk gives place to the Emperors Ambassadors above all other. 31
The Titles of the Heirs apparent to the Empire from time to time. 37
The Territories of the Pope 300 miles in length. 60
The Pope pretends to be Lord Paramount of England by King Johns Grant. 61
Titles of the House of Austria. 89

V.

THe Vastnes of the old Roman Monarchy. 54
The vast circumference of Rome in Vopiscus time 50 miles compass. 54
A very witty emblem of the Turks Ambassador touching Germany. 64
A very witty devise of the Dutchess of Bava-

Bavaria to preserve her husband, 58
The Vicarship of the Empire challeng'd by the Count Palatin, and his reasons. 74
A very witty way found by a Iesuitt to make the old Duke of Bavaria get Children. 71
The Upper Palatinat, the County of Cham, with the Electorship conferr'd upon the Bavarian. 79

W

THe wantones of the people more than the Tarquins, cause of the expulsion of Kings. 6
A weak Act of the Roman Senat. 7
The Welsh and Irish have no other name for an English men, but Saisson or Saxon. 12
Wenceslaus the Emperour, depos'd, and the manner how it was. 35
Why England fell from the Roman Emperour, and from the Pope. 62

Were not the Imperial Eagles imp'd with Austrian feathers they would be as bare as a Coot.

Gloria Honor & Deo Sæculorum in Sæcula Sæculorum.
Chronogramma.

Were not ye Imperiall Eagles Imp'd wth austrian feathers they wd be as bald as a Coot.

Gloria Honor & Deo Sæculorum in Sæcula Sæculorum.

Chronogramma
Sequatur
porcus per lauru[m]
vestigia fem.

Chronus atora terra remotarum